

BBC Radio International Classical Music Catalogue – Proms 2016

Every summer in London, the world's biggest classical music festival takes place: the BBC Proms. For two months, ensembles, soloists, and conductors from around the world descend on the Royal Albert Hall, to make their contribution to the festival's rich musical offering.

In year of the Olympic Games in Rio, the Proms Latin America Focus includes a performance by the incomparable Simón Bolívar Symphony Orchestra under Gustavo Dudamel.

Daniel Barenboim and his renowned Staatskapelle Berlin perform two Proms featuring a Mozart piano concerto paired with a Bruckner symphony, a pairing which is also taken up in the first of two Proms given by the equally renowned Staatskapelle Dresden and their Chief Conductor Christian Thielemann. The Gustav Mahler Jugendorchester too makes a contribution to this Bruckner symphony mini-series.

Other overseas visitors to the Proms include the Munich and Berlin Philharmonic orchestras, Leipzig Gewandhaus Orchestra, Budapest Festival Orchestra, Ensemble Intercontemporain and the Gustav Mahler Jugendorchester, while Daniel Barenboim returns for his annual Proms appearance with the West-Eastern Divan Orchestra, with star guest, the pianist Martha Argerich.

Among the conductors featured this season are Valery Gergiev, Simon Rattle, Mark Elder, Philippe Jordan, Ilan Volkov, Sakari Orami, Semyon Bychkov and Ivan Fischer, while soloists include violinist Nikolaj Znaider, and pianists Andras Schiff and Stephen Hough.

Proms choral works this season include Beethoven's Missa solemnis, Bach's Mass in B minor, Poulenc's Stabat mater, and Mozart's Mass in C minor and Requiem. The Orchestra of the Age of Enlightenment and Mark Elder also give a concert performance of Rossini's opera Semiramide.
